Basil cracks Level 1000 on KFC sauce

Soham is back with a bang!

CHESS AMONG US!

It took over 7 months of the year to conduct a meet comprising of at least four members physically present, but it surely lived up to its billing. It was hardly bereft of entertainment, thrills, joys and excitement. And why must we ever expect it not to be the so, dear readers? - After all, it is the congregation of the five most intellectual minds in the universe under a common mission - to dominate the World someday in the future!

The theme and heading for this meet was decided at a playful moment when your humble editor Anish, told Basil, that Spandan and he were playing the games "Chess, AmongUs" recently in their spare time - the punctuation or compound word did not seem too important to be recognised at the time of receipt of the information :) However, it is still pretty misleading as we played neither of them on that day. Now let me introduce you to the setting of this meet.

It all started at 5 p.m. on the 15th of July, 2023 (Saturday) at Acropolis Mall. As the members kept walking in, they gathered near the food court - occupying a table near what we can call 'Heaven on Earth'. Each member updated one another on the recent turn of events in their lives and also discussed plans on future expansion and World Domination. The meet witnessed a full house as we had David on Video Call for some time amidst a host of technical difficulties. It was pretty unfortunate on his end to miss out on this meeting as he had to be in college for his upcoming examinations, but that did not deter anyone's hopes of a reunion in the near future, as he is believed to come over to Kolkata from August till almost the end of the year.

Soham made his long-awaited presence felt at the meet upon arrival and the events that followed! Anish and Spandan were somewhat spectators to the epic discussion which took place between Basil and Soham. The approach to the matter was rather philosophical and certainly worth pondering, and each of them had their valid share of points. The talk seemed to revolutionise the concept of meaning of 'society', addressing the concerns, issues and revolutions in various economic and social aspects of it. Involving 21st century intellectuals, this discussion was vibrant with various twists and approaches.

More about this would be covered in details in a later edition. Jokingly, we can call this 'The Battle of the Cream', because it was said that the loser would be taking a lick of the Cream Mayonnaise from KFC. With regards to this, we have another great achievement - the KFC dips sauce packets seemed almost difficult for everyone who tried to open it except for the one and only Basil, who exhibited his never-dying IIT-style approach of solving any problem. The others were hopeless in this regard, when Basil pulled off the unachievable on not only one but two such packets (Massive respect 🙏).

We feasted upon some snacks from KFC, followed by dinner from Domino's. A balcony-shopping (rather glancing) of the book-store 'Crossword' and a stroll around the upper 2 floors of the mall, ensured that we were not only putting in calories, but also, at the same time burning them. (Health is wealth, they say)

In addition to selfies, we were aided by a good Samaritan on our way out, who agreed to take a group photograph of ours - to be added to a rich collection, etched in history and time.

The next moment is something which we never hoped for to have happened, but always comes our way every single time we meet. We always hope that we remain in each one's company forever, secluded from the monotonous life - but that is never to be. Partings are always difficult but we know that they are temporary, and re-assure us of coming back even stronger and happier the next time.

With this, concluded yet another extravaganza of the Best Friends Family in the World - The We Five Family! Until next time...

A NEW INVENTION : PARADOX

Inventions and The We Five go hand-in-hand ever since its inception. The philosophical discussion at the Battle of the Cream (2023 AD) yielded yet another such invention in the form of a paradox that the World has never seen before, named the Soham-Basil Mayo Paradox, which goes as follows:

“Every sentence is rubbish.”

Soham had said these magical words in counter-argument to a statement made by Basil when the latter wittily snapped in the response, making this a magnificent paradox made in the most magnanimous manner. EXPLANATION: If this statement has been made, then it has to be true as per the person who defined it. However, This statement falls in the set of sentences. So, according to the logical meaning of the statement, all sentences are rubbish including this sentence itself. This defies the initial intended meaning of the sentence. Guess what? - this puts us in a never ending tunnel (hole).
