দুর্গোৎসব = the chaturthi carnival at Super South

The festive season is once again back in Bengal, with the much anticipated Durga Puja - and this provided the platform for an exciting We Five Gathering in - filled with thrills, joys and excitement. However, this celebration remained incomplete, again due to the unfortunate absence of Basil. It is awfully heartbreaking - his college seemed too adamant to conduct examinations during the biggest festival due to which he was unable to come over to Bengal for Pujas, this year.

The city of Kolkata is always decked up during this season with large hoardings and lightings mainly from Chandannagar. Every lane, every street has a different story with Pandals at every second corner down the street. The sound of Dhakis with the conch shell gives goosebumps every time and sets up the body with nostalgia. These 10 days may fly by the fastest but are the best days spent across the year, a claim which is very hard to refute.

On Wednesday (18th October, 2023), Chaturthi, the We Five embarked on Pandal Hopping in the Super Southern part of Kolkata, from 11:30 a.m. onwards. We covered a majority of Pandals in the South namely - Ekdalia, Singh Park, Bosepukur, Hindustan Park & Club, Ballygunge Cultural & Samaj Sebi, Deshapriya Park, Tridhara and Mudiali. Jodhpur Park and EEDF were closed which caused a premature end to our outing for that evening. Details of these would be elaborated in the upcoming section. We feasted on KFC and Keventers at Lake Mall for lunch. It being the daytime, we covered much of the pandals with ease, though there were crowds prominent at Tridhara and Ballygunge.

The sun was not down at its fullest, keeping the heat a shade down - though not notable enough. Traversing among nearby pandals by foot is an emotion that only people in Bengal can feel. With a splurge of such emotions, the We Five part, for not very long, next to meet at the CWC Semi Finals.

BOSEPUKUR SITALA MANDIR: Themed on Chairs, it seemed that they wanted to convey the message of re-using old worn out or disposed chairs rather than just polluting the environment.

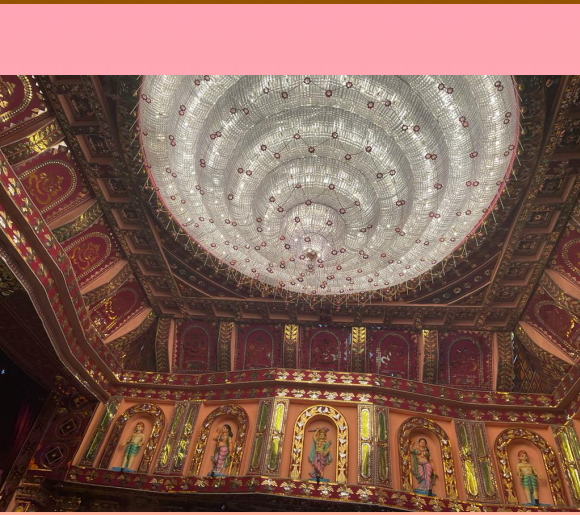

EKDALIA EVERGREEN: As always, the crowd-puller in the South, with the beautiful eyes of the Goddess and the jhar (lamp), which is a bliss to the eye.

SINGHI PARK: A must visit along with Ekdalia due to its striking distance, also famed for the stupendous idol painted with magnificent eyes.

HINDUSTHAN CLUB: They portrayed the fine usage of jute in weaving the different components of the pandal. Children of Goddess Durga are placed in a white flag held in the deity's hand.

HINDUSTHAN PARK: A beautiful and vibrant pandal which had magnificent interior designing. It certainly portrayed the hard efforts put in by the artist.

TRIDHARA: A huge crowd in the afternoon itself proved how attractive this pandal was. As always, they put in a lot of hard-work in the making of the pandal.

DESHOPRIYA PARK: The hype of this pandal has been only for when it had built the tallest idol, but has miserably failed thereafter. The pandal looks like a helmet.

BALLYGUNGE CULTURAL ASSOCIATION: It is worth the walk from the opposite end of Tridhara to this pandal, as it just awe-struck us with its magnificence. It was themed on the Bengali language and very well constructed by the artist. Surely got to be one of our favourites.

BALLYGUNGE SAMAJ SEBI: A must-visit, adjacent to the Ballygunge Cultural. The pandal is themed on 'Durga Sahay', which is evident through the nice display outside the pandal.

MUDIALI: Even though it was the last that we saw, it certainly was worth it - I will run out of adjectives to describe this brilliant pandal. A lot of intricate work has been blended in order to make this pandal a success and I would certainly recommend people going to the South to pop-in to this Puja Pandal at least once.

LUNCH @ LAKE MALL:

Burgers, Pieces, Strips and Wings from KFC accompanied by Slushes from Keventers were a befitting refreshment in the midst of the Pandal Hopping.

The We five would certainly like to rate this mall ahead of Avani Mall, among the malls that they have been to so far.
